

SERVES 30 YEARS AS STATOIN AGENT

JOHN S. DOWLING ASSUMED DUTIES AS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE VANDALIA RAILROAD IN GREENCASTLE, ON OCTOBER 1, 1883.

HAS SEEN MANY CHANGES

Thirty years ago tomorrow, on October 1, 1883, John S. Dowling, the Vandalia agent in Greencastle began his duties in this town. Since assuming the duties of agent on that day he has continuously served as the agent for the Vandalia railroad in Greencastle.

There is not an official on the Vandalia now who was in office when Mr. Dowling took up his duties in Greencastle nor is there another station agent on the line who has a record of thirty years' service at one station.

During the thirty years Mr. Dowling has been in charge of the business of the railroad in this town, there have been many changes in the railroad and in the town.

The Rebekahs of Greencastle are holding a reception this afternoon in the I. O. O. F. hall. The guest of honor is Mrs. Elda S. Van Dorin of Indianapolis. Mrs. Van Dorin is the president of the Indiana Rebekah assembly.

Invitations have been issued by Eileen and Hadley Cammack for a farewell party in honor of Leola Gaither, who will leave for Cincinnati Thursday.

FOREST NOTES.

The railroads of the United States use about 150,000,000 wooden ties each year.

Cadillac, Mich., is reported to be the foremost city in the country for varied and close utilization of forest products.

More than one-fourth of all the sheep in the eleven states nearest the Pacific coast are grazed on the national forests.

The national forests contain water powers with an aggregate estimated capacity of 12,000,000 horsepower available for use under permit from the secretary of agriculture.

Much of the piling, wharf material and lock gates of the Panama canal are made of greenheart, said to be the most durable wood known for these purposes, which comes mainly from British Guiana.

The western forestry and conservation association will hold its annual conference about December 15. This year it will meet at Vancouver, B. C., and will give its main consideration to the problem of forest fire prevention and control.

Student Mysteriously Disappeared.

Clay Riley, a freshman in the university from Middletown, Ohio, suddenly disappeared Friday afternoon and no word has been received of his whereabouts.

The young man is supposed to have been discouraged by the showing he had made as a candidate for the varsity football team and left on that account. He was a fraternity pledge and had made many friends and was popular.

HARDER TO LIVE FOR ONE'S COUNTRY

THAN IT IS TO DIE FOR HER SAID REV. G. H. L. BEEMAN OF GREENCASTLE—ADDRESSED A LARGE AUDIENCE AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH IN CRAWFORDS VILLE SUNDAY NIGHT.

"THE BEST CITIZENSHIP"

Rev. G. H. L. Beeman of Greencastle, state secretary of the National Reform Association, addressed a large audience in the Christian church Sunday evening upon "The Best Citizenship." Mr. Beeman said in part: "Christ was a good citizen and urged people to do their duty in civil affairs, saying 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's.' In rendering unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, we are just so far rendering unto God the things that are God's, for government is the ordinance of God. It is harder to live for one's country than it is to die for her, and we must be willing if need be, to sacrifice our own convenience for the good of the state. The Christian duties of citizenship are exceedingly important. The church may save and consecrate men, and instruct them as to their civil duties as well as in other things. Then these saved men must carry their consecration with them unto their citizenship to help save the nation at large. And this, in general, is Christian citizenship." Further refining Christian citizenship, the speaker outlined certain great principles of Christian civil government, the acceptance and practice of which by the individual will secure Christian citizenship. These principles are:

1 Government is responsible to God. 2 God is the source of authority in human government. 3 Christ is the ruler of nations, nations should learn to obey Him. 4 The Bible is the standard by which to determine moral issues in the political sphere. Political leaders should study the Bible. 5 God has provided for the forgiveness of national sins through Jesus Christ. 6 The ideal nation is the Christian nation.

"Christian men," said Mr. Beeman, "must be Christians in citizenship, must never compromise with evil and must do their duty in the government by voting only for good men and seeking the enactment of righteous laws. Religion has always had a place in our government. Let the principles of Jesus Christ prevail."

In the afternoon, Mr. Beeman spoke in the United Brethren church upon "Practical Patriotism," and in the morning he addressed the Presbyterian congregation at Shannondale.

The movement represented was organized in 1863. It has been doing a great work to further Christian government and moral reforms. It recently conducted the great world's Christian citizenship conference at Portland, Ore., where all these problems were discussed by speakers from all over the world. The National Reform Association of Pittsburgh is issuing a cloth bound volume report of that great gathering, a book containing a vast fund of information.—The Crawfordsville Journal.

PROGRAMS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Following the proclamation of Governor Ralston, urging the observance of October 9, as Fire Prevention Day in Indiana, increased interest in fire prevention has sprung up throughout the state. Inquires from school superintendents and interested business men are coming into the office of Fire Marshal Longley daily, asking for information and suggestions concerning the day and observance.

It is the intent of the fire marshal to cooperate in every way possible with schools and organizations which are planning to observe Fire Prevention Day in some public manner. To this end the office has had printed a number of extra copies of the governor's proclamation. It is suggested that the proclamation be read in every school in the state in observance of the day.

In addition, small leaflets have been prepared which contain suggestions for business men's meetings in the interest of fire prevention. Programs of a somewhat similar nature have also been prepared for use in the school room. In these the children are given a prominent part in bringing home the various lessons which bear upon the fire protection. Supplementing the small leaflets, the fire marshal's office is also supplied with more complete programs, containing plans for city parades, and outlines for tableaux to be presented at public meetings. Copies of the leaflets or programs may be obtained by addressing the State Fire Marshal, at Indianapolis.

In the effort to cooperate with Fire Marshal Longley, the executive committee of the Indiana State Fire Prevention Association has mailed letters to all its members and field agents regarding Fire Prevention Day and its observance. The Indiana State Fire Prevention Association has a membership of approximately 100, made up of insurance field men and others interested in fire insurance and fire prevention. Their letter says:

"The undersigned members of your Executive Committee believe that all of the field men should use their best efforts, personal and otherwise in the direction of getting agents as well as others to take an increased interest in fire prevention, and to use their best influence in bringing the public into sympathy with it. We feel that everyone should be impressed with the necessity of cleaning up accumulations of rubbish, making an examination of floors, and stove pipe arrangements, and seeing that safe metal receptacles are provided for the temporary disposal of ashes, the careful storage of their winter fuel, and to make Fire Prevention Day a 'Clean-Up-Day.' This interest and activity will result in seeing that premises are kept in safe condition with view to the prevention of fires throughout all the other days of the year."

The committee does not doubt that this will have your hearty cooperation in a personal way, and that you will make early request for a supply of the bulletins for distribution, as indicated to the end, that the great fire waste of the state may be lessened."

The letter is signed by C. J. Richmond, president of the association; and J. B. Cromer, member of the executive committee.

Bulletins and copies of the governor's proclamation will be mailed by the state fire marshal to the various members of the State Fire Prevention Association. It is the hope of Fire Marshal Longley to supply the information possible, so that Fire Prevention Day may be of the widest possible educational value to citizens throughout the entire state.

COMMISSION TO BE HERE SOON

PENAL FARM LOCATIONS WILL BE VIEWED BY MEMBERS OF THE STATE COMMISSION SOME TIME DURING THE FIRST OF OCTOBER—LOCAL COMMITTEE HAS EVERYTHING IN SHAPE.

MAY BE HERE NEXT WEEK

The State Penal Farm Commission, which will select a site for the State Penal farm, is expected to visit Greencastle within a few days and examine two local sites which have been offered. The commission recently informed the Greencastle committee that it would be here about the first of October.

Elam Denny and David Hughes, who have done most of the work in securing options for the sites, and who have been active in booming the local sites with the commission members, stated this morning that they would not be surprised if the commission members got here as early as next week.

They cannot come too soon for the local committee as it has everything in readiness to show the sites to good advantage. Blue prints have been made of each of the sites and descriptions of all the lands prepared. Data has been prepared and all is in readiness to show the commission members that Greencastle can offer the best location to be found in Indiana.

A COMPROMISE IN THE CROSBY CASE

HILLIS & SHOPTAUGH THE LOCAL WELL DRILLERS, ARE GIVEN $400 AND EACH SIDE PAYS ITS OWN COSTS—CASE STARTED TRIAL LAST WEEK.

ORIGINAL BILL $362.50

Just before the time set for continuing the trial of Hillis & Shoptaugh, the local well drillers, against J. H. Crosby, of near Roachdale, in Circuit court this morning, attorneys for the parties notified Judge Hughes that an agreement had been reached and the case was dismissed.

By the terms of the agreement, Mr. Crosby pays Hillis & Shoptaugh $400 and each side pays their own court costs. The original bill of Hillis & Shoptaugh for drilling the well was $362.50. Mr. Crosby, alleging that the well was not what it should be refused to pay the bill, and Hillis & Shoptaugh filed a mechanics lien on his farm. The suit was to foreclose the mechanics lien. Beside the bill for the drilling of the well they asked $50 attorney fees and costs.

The trial was begun in the Putnam Circuit Court last week.

HOGS OPEN HIGHER BY FIVE TO TEN CENTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 30.—A firmer tone was shown in local hog prices in the opening session, quotations netting an increase ranging from 5c to 10c. About 3,000 hogs were on sale, a liberal run for the first day of the week, but all buyers were active. The extreme top price moved up to $9.20, but sales at this mark were limited. The bulk moved from $8.90 to $9.10, with frequent transactions at $9.15. The market closed up steady and there was a strong clearance.

Cattle Market Slow.
Cattle supplies reached nearly thirty cars, a big run for the day of the week. Many order men were at other markets and this kept the demand sluggish, resulting in a draggy market, though changes in prices were narrow. The clearance on top grade stuff was strong. Calves were steady to strong, best grades ranging as high as 11½c. There was very little change in sheep and lambs, the bulk of sales being made at Saturday's range. Lambs did not pass the 6½c mark and $3.85 was the top on sheep. The close was about steady.

BROTHERS MEET, FIRST TIME IN FORTY YEARS

Former Congressman Elias S. Holliday yesterday spent the day in Indianapolis where he met with his four brothers, Henry C. Archie and Frank of Indianapolis and Court of Sheridan, Mo., in the first reunion of the brothers in more than forty years.

The last time the brothers were together, the youngest brother was fifteen years of age. He is now 56 years of age. The oldest brother is now 76 years of age. It is needless to say that the meeting was enjoyed by Mr. Holliday.—Brazil Times.

Tears and Their Cause.
Tears have no more to do with sorrow than with any other emotion, and their persuasive powers should be nil. Weeping is merely the dregs of a used-up emotion of any character whatever. Children cry even more easily than women, because their nervous system is less stable; men cry less because theirs is more developed and in better control.

Something of a Curiosity.
Ruthie accompanied her mamma to prayer service, and during the service the hymn, "Cross and Crown," the first line of which reads, "The consecrated cross I'll bear," etc., was sung with much fervor by the congregation, when Ruthie considerably upset her mother's gravity by whispering excitedly: "Mamma, what does a cross-eyed bear look like?"

DEER AS ARMY TRAINERS.

Revolutionary Patriots Learned This From This Animal.

There is no probability that the whitetail will ever serve man in any domestic capacity, but it may in a different way. By reason of its singular adaptability and gifts, it is the only one of our deer that can live contentedly and unsuspectingly in a hundred acres of thicket, says a writer in Scribner's.

It is the only one that can sit unconcernedly all the day long while factory whistles and bells are sounding around it, and yet distinguish at once the sinister twig snap that tells of some prowling foe as far away, perhaps, as the other noises.

It is the only one that hearing a hostile footfall, will sneak around to wind the cause, study its trail, and then glide, catlike, through the brush to a farther haven, without even trying to see the foe or give him a chance for a shot. It is the least migratory, the least polygamous, the least roving as well as the swiftest, keenest, shyest, wisest, most prolific, and most successful of our deer.

The whitetail is the American deer of the past, and the American deer of the future. I have no doubt that whatever other species drop out of the hard fight, the whitetail will flourish in all the region of the plow, as long as there are sentiments and laws to give it a season of respite each year.

In some ways it is no better game than others that could be named, but its habits fit it in an unusual degree to continue in all parts of the country.

As a domestic animal it is a failure; but it may have another mission. The hunter makes the highest type of soldier, and the whitetail makes the highest type of hunter that is widely possible to-day. The whitetail trained the armies of the Revolution—even as the antelope of the verde trained the Boers, and may supply the vital training of the country's armies in the future. When this people no longer has need of armies, when the nations learn war no more, and men cease to take pleasure in beautiful wild life—then only can we afford to lose the whitetail deer.

Valuable Bulldog.
The illustration shows the $5,000 bulldog recently purchased by Miss L. de Groot. He is said to be the greatest bulldog on earth, a Londoner by birth, and springs from the illustrious dog house of Khalifa. His prizes include 300 first and second and several fifty guinea challenge cups and vases.

Glories of War.
In the so-called "glorious" victories of Caesar a million men perished on the field of battle. Napoleon, in the short space of nine years, was authorized to devote to "the glory of France" 2,103,000 of her sons. In the ten years following the attack on Fort Sumter the world destroyed in war 1,400,000 lives and $6,000,000,000 worth of property. Two-thirds of the combined budgets of the various States of Europe are devoted to the maintenance of armed forces and to the service of a debt practically the whole of which was incurred by wars. War expenses in Europe absorb one-half of all the wealth created by productive labor. In the comparatively insignificant war of England with the Boers England lost 22,450 men and spent $1,400,000,000. Three hundred and fifty thousand men were withdrawn by her from productive industry to engage in the destruction of war. Military expenditures in the United States during the last eight years have absorbed $1,500,000,000.

The Pampered Seal.
Los Angeles owns one poor little seal, which is kept in a small enclosure at Eastlake park. The food that is fed this seal consists of fish, which costs the city $600 a year. The lake in Eastlake and Westlake parks and one of the city reservoirs are filled with carp in such number that they are a nuisance. It is proposed to turn the seal loose in the different lakes and reservoir and allow him to feed on the carp until the fish are exterminated. It is claimed it will take years for the seal to eat up all the fish. In the meantime the city saves $600 a year.

"Coffee" Made from Bananas.
Another use for bananas is that of making what is called banana coffee. A firm in New York manufactures banana coffee, but they complain that they find very little sale for the flour. The same complaint was made by a London firm which handled banana flour.

MARRIAGE CUSTOMS IN THIBET.

Queer Ceremonies Gone Through Before Maid Becomes Wife.

The Thibetans commonly marry between the ages of twenty and twenty-five; as a rule, the girls being younger than the boys. The marriage is entirely arranged by the respective parents, the greatest secrecy being maintained—so much so that the parties most interested have no suspicion of what is being entertained.

The parents of the boy begin by despatching their agents to the parents of the girl, as a repayment of what the latter has cost to bring up—this sum naturally varying according to the status of the families. The date being settled, the parents of the girl are given to understand when the formal go-between will be sent to them from the other party.

At the proper time "milk money" is paid by the boy's parents to the mother of the girl, as a repayment of what the latter has cost to bring up—this sum naturally varying according to the status of the families. The date being settled, the parents of the girl are given to understand when the formal go-between will be sent to them from the other party.

Just before his arrival, the girl will be told to make an elaborate toilet, and on the arrival of the go-between she is formally told that she is to be married to So-and-so. The feast of "sending the bride away" is then held immediately, and lasts from two to five days—sometimes much longer.

Presents are given to the girl by her parents and friends, and shortly an agent arrives from the bridegroom's parents bringing the "milk money" and a wedding gown for the bride. The latter is also given a marriage jewel to wear on her brow, as a sign that she is a married woman.

This is taken away from her by the husband, should she at any later time be divorced from him. On the day appointed for the bride's departure, the priests are called in, and various prayers are offered up; the professional adviser is also invited, and he gives the girl much instruction and advice as to her future duties.

Finally, the girl sets out on horseback, wearing all the ornaments given to her, also the dress sent by the bridegroom, and over her head a green, yellow, red and white cloth, which completely screens her face. She is met in the road by the welcoming party from the bridegroom, and then ensues more feasting, sometimes at the roadside eating houses, or at friends' houses, or even in tents.

Arrived at the bridegroom's house, they find the door closed against them, and various ceremonies are gone through before it is slowly opened by the boy's mother, who offers greetings in the form of special refreshments. Feasting and prayers then follow, and the parents of the bridegroom give each one of the guests a bit of thin silk, which signifies the perfect agreement of both parties.

Agricultural Wages in Russia.
The extreme poverty and the low standard of living of peasants from whom the agricultural laborers are recruited assure a low level of wages for agricultural labor, says the Bureau of Statistics report. The average wages will appear almost incredibly low from an American point of view, notwithstanding the general complaints of the estate holders concerning the unreasonable demands of the laborers. According to an official investigation embracing the decade of 1882-1891, the average annual wages for a male agricultural worker in Russia were less than $32 and for a female worker less than $18. To this must be added the cost of subsistence, which is equally low, being on an average $24 for a male and $22 for a female worker for a whole year; so that the average cost of employing a laborer for the entire year is equal to only $55 for the male and $40 for the female. The wages for the summer season of five months are almost equal to the annual wages, being $22 for the male and $13 for the female laborer.

Position of a Watch.
Does a watch run better lying flat on its back or on edge? I put this question to half a score of dealers and none answered it, says a writer in the New York Press. Apparently none had thought of it. Perhaps a majority of men place their watches under the pillow at night, where they lie flat down for about eight hours. During the remaining sixteen they are on edge in the pocket. A watch in the pocket is warmed by the heat of the body. A watch on the bureau is cold. How is it affected? In a show window is a watch frozen solid in a 200-pound cake of ice, keeping excellent time. In another window is a chronometer at the bottom of a tank of water ticking away merrily and accurately. I have looked in vain for a time-piece smiling in a furnace.

Independent Nerve Centers.
A laborer was brought to one of the large hospitals of Paris with his back broken in such a way as to sever the connection between his brain and the lower extremities. On tickling his feet with a feather the patient would draw away from the irritation unconsciously. This movement of the feet was evidently brought about by the local action of the nerve centers in those limbs, independently of the brain. This experiment has led many naturalists to doubt the so-called "intelligent choice" in lower animals, but believe rather in the local action at the various parts of the animal's body.

KAISER'S VOICE IN RECORDS.

His Words Are on First Permanent Rolls in Phonetic Archives.

One of the novelties of the last few years is the establishment of phonetic archives, in which the voices of noteworthy persons are to be preserved.

The first record actually taken for such a permanent archive in America was that of a European, says a writer in the Century Magazine. Through the American Ambassador, Charles-Magne Tower, I applied for a "record of the voice of the German Emperor, for preservation in durable material in Harvard University, the National Museum at Washington, and the Library of Congress at Washington. The record is to be kept as a historical document for posterity. The Phonetic Archives at the institution mentioned are to include records from such persons as will presumably have permanent interest for America. The importance of the undertaking can be estimated by considering the present value of voice records by Demosthenes, Shakespeare, or Emperor William the Great."

The Emperor consented, and the apparatus was set up in the palace. I asked for four records, one for each of the institutions mentioned and one for my own scientific investigation. The Emperor, however, made only two records, designating one for Harvard University and the other for the other purposes. The two records were made by a phonograph (with specially selected recorders) on wax cylinders. Such cylinders are of no permanent value, because they are often injured by mold, and sooner or later they always crack, owing to changes in temperature.

From each original "master record" a metal matrix was made by coating it with graphite and then galvanoplasting it. The wax master record was then removed (being destroyed in the process), leaving a mold from which "positives"—that is, copies of the original—could be cast. Durable positives were cast in a hard shellac composition and in celluloid. Some casts were also made in wax, and new metal matrices were made from these. In this manner the following material was obtained: (1) A metal matrix and positive of Record No. 1, deposited in the National Museum at Washington; (2) a similar set of Records No. 1, deposited in the Congressional Library at Washington; (3) a similar set of Record No. 2, deposited in the Congressional Library at Washington; (4) a similar set of Record No. 2, deposited in Harvard University; (5) a complete set of both records (a metal matrix and a positive of each), which I presented to the Emperor; and (6) a reserve set of both. These are the only records of the German Emperor's voice which exist at the present time.

Athletic Young King.
Alfonso, the young King of Spain, while on his yacht, the Giralda, at Bilbao, quickly divested himself of his royal robes, and donning a scanty bathing suit dived from the deck into the sea for a swim. His Majesty is daily adding to his laurels in athletic exercises.

He is stated to be a wonderful shot, and once, while in Scotland, astonished the gamekeepers by his marksmanship. He is an excellent horseman, and, as an automobilist he is so reckless and daring that the press of Madrid is almost daily complaining of the danger he runs of being killed.

Oldest Tree in the World.
The oldest tree in the world is said to be the famous dragon tree of Tenerife, which is estimated to be from 4,000 to 6,000 years of age. This wonder of the plant world was seventy feet or more in height until the years 1819, when during a terrific storm one of the large branches was broken off. A similar storm in 1867, stripped the trunk of its remaining branches, and left it standing alone. This tree derives its common name from a reddish exudation known as Dragon's blood, found in the sepulchral caves of the Gauchas, and supposed to have been used by them in embalming their dead.

Suit Against Motor Company.
Attributing his failure at the recent French elections to the frequent breakdowns of his motor car, a candidate has brought an action against a motor manufacturer and claims $2,000 damages.

CRANE FOR SILAGE CART.

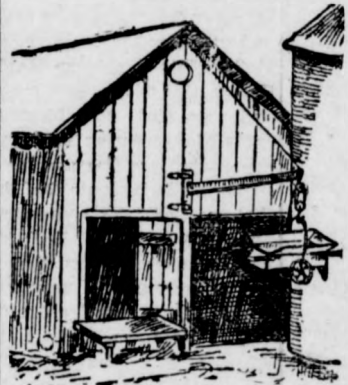

With This Device a Boy Can Handle a 200-Pound Load.

I have a plan for handling silage where the silo is some distance from the feed-way which will interest others who have the same difficulty to contend with. As shown in the illustration a sweep has been arranged with a tackle at the end for lifting a car bodily from the ground and swinging it around to the feed platform.

The sweep is a 2x6 made of any suitable length. In our case we use a 16-foot sweep. It is hinged to the barn about 10 feet from the ground with two ordinary gate hinges. The rod which supports the outer end is fastened to the barn by means of an eye bolt, thus leaving the crane free to swing either way.

The cart box is 5 feet long, 2 1/2 feet wide, and 2 feet deep. The top board which is 8 inches wide, is made to flare out as shown in the illustration, so as to increase the capacity of the box. Our feed-way floor is 2 1/2 feet above the ground so that we fixed the platform the same height in front of the door. The cart lands on this platform and may be wheeled inside.

To operate this cart by the crane the former is hooked on and raised by means of a rope and pulley until it swings a few inches above the platform. It is then tied in this position, making it possible to swing the cart around to the silo and have it filled without lowering.

When full it is swung back to the platform and when unhooked it is free to be pushed along the feed-way and unloaded directly into the mangers. With this device our 12-year-old boy can handle a 200-pound load of silage without any difficulty whatever.—Champaign Co., Ill. Reader.

A Domesticated Wolf.

A Maryland farmer has a curiosity in the shape of a domesticated wolf. Last Spring he discovered that something was carrying off his lambs almost as fast as they were born in his flock. He suspected that this was being done by a wildcat and he set a trap to catch the marauder. Instead of a wildcat, the trap caught a wolf, and the farmer instantly dispatched it. Hardly had he done so, when a little baby wolf made its appearance from the brush and moaned piteously around its dead mother. The farmer took it home, and for a few days it was in a good way to starve to death, when the farmer's wife had a bright idea. One of the ewes had been robbed of her lamb (undoubtedly by the big wolf), and the little wolf was carried to the bereaved ewe to receive nourishment. The wolf thrived amazingly on sheep's milk, and the strange foster parent formed a strong attachment for its natural enemy. To other animals, and to all human beings except the farmer, the wolf was extremely savage, but it slept side by side with the ewe, and the farmer could handle it like a house dog.

Scarcity of Labor.

The growing scarcity of labor in rural districts is a fact with which the owners and tenants of agricultural land are daily brought face to face and there seems little possibility of any improvement in this respect. If agricultural labor cannot be retained, only one way remains open and this is to endeavor so far as possible to do without it, by adopting machines and implements which will accomplish the work with the minimum amount of manual assistance. The first outlay on machinery is a serious item of expenditure which many farmers are unfortunately not in a position to provide. This difficulty can be overcome only by a bunch of neighboring farmers combining in the purchase and use of the more expensive implements, or by the land-owners providing them for the use of tenants and charging a reasonable sum for the accommodation together with a fair amount for depreciation. In any event, this question of farm labor has become a strenuous proposition and if the Japs are to fight us, it will become much more so in the next decade.

Minutes Mean Dollars IN TREATING ANIMALS

Doubtless you know the danger of delayed treatment of colic and other diseases. You also realize that wrongly applied remedies are often worse than no treatment at all. In other words, not to diagnose a disease accurately may prove fatal. Every owner should be able to recognize an ailment and give correct treatment at the first symptoms. Prompt action is the great secret of treating horses.

Minutes mean dollars. Of course proper treatment is always necessary. That is just how Humphrey's 500 page Veterinary Manual will prove so valuable to you. It is by F. Humphrey, M. D., V. S., and teaches how to diagnose and give proper treatment. This book will save you hundreds of dollars and costs you nothing. It will be sent absolutely free on request to any farmer in order to introduce it to his neighbors.

Humphrey's Veterinary Remedies. Remember, it's absolutely free. You do not have to order any remedies to secure the book. Address, Humphrey's Homeopathic Medicine Company, 136 William Street, New York City. This is a splendid opportunity to obtain a veterinary treatise that you should have in your library. As a reference work you will find it invaluable. To have it in the time of need will be worth many dollars, whereas it will cost you but a postcard by writing for it now.

"DOCTORS" FOR POOR FARMS.

Make Rehabilitation of Worn Out Soil Their Profession.

Nowadays when a farmer finds that his land is less fruitful than he thinks it ought to be, he can call in a "soil doctor," just as he would consult a vet, if his cattle were diseased. Soil doctors are less common in this country than in Canada.

In this country within the last five years, farmers have spent thousands of dollars on patent fertilizers, whose action on the fields is oddly similar to the action of pills on the human body.

But even this very up-to-date science of soil physicking has its "old-fashioned" and "new-fashioned" schools, which are almost ludicrously like the old and new medical methods of human treatment.

Just as in the twentieth century it is the habit of the smartest doctor to decry medicines and order his patient fresh air and exercise, so the newest soil doctors have started ordering air and exercise for the farmer's fields, instead of the old treatment with chemicals, bone-dust, and artificial fertilizers.

It seems absurd to tell a farmer to "exercise" his land, but it is more common sense than it sounds.

A field which will hardly produce a crop to pay for the harvesting, and which the older soil doctors have pronounced in need of treatment with chemicals to restore its vitality, has been tested, and found to contain, per acre, in the top eight inches of the soil alone, four thousand pounds of nitrogen, six thousand pounds of phosphoric acid, and twenty thousand pounds of potash--the very medicine which has been ordered for it! All it needed, in a word, was "exercise and fresh air"--that is, tillage.

The soil of a field exercises itself. It is true, if you give it time. It is constantly on the move--though walking over it you might think it as steady as a rock. Everybody knows, of course, that the surface of the world is very slowly changing its shape owing to the action of rain and frost.

But the farmer's field and the gardener's field and the gardener's geranium bed are "on the go," albeit invisibly, for other reasons as well as these.

To begin with, the soil is itself a sort of chemical laboratory in which myriads of atoms and particles are endlessly combining and separating. Then, secondly, there is the movement of the soil caused by insects, visible and invisible.

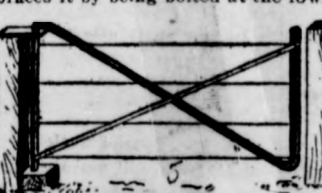

Ants, for example, were shown by an investigator to have brought to the surface of a four acre meadow enough fine soil yearly to cover the whole area a fifth of an inch deep--an extraordinary example of unaided and unasked-for manuring.

Worms, too, cause an incredible amount of movement in soil, from which they extract their nourishment. Twenty-five to fifty thousand worms in an acre of land pass through their bodies ten tons of soil. Common soil contains as many as four hundred million separate particles to the ounce, and between all these are infinitely thin layers of what the modern soil doctor calls "film-water." It is on the film-water, not on the soil itself, that plants feed, for it dissolves from the earth particles the food which the plants require to make them grow and the physics they need to keep them well.

PEARLS DUE TO WORMS.

French Naturalist Discovers Parasite Which Causes Gems.

The origin of the pearl in the shell of the oyster or other bivalve or mollusk has been the object of a considerable amount of investigation and speculation. Among the more recent studies of the subject may be noted those of M. Seurat, recorded in the "Comptes Rendus." This naturalist finds that in pearl oysters from the Gambia lagoons, in the South Pacific, the pearls are due to a small worm--a sort of tapeworm. In cysts on the body and mantle of the oyster he has found true pearls surrounding a nucleus which he has shown to be one of these worms. Like other tapeworms, this one concerned in the production of pearls requires a second host in which to complete its development. M. Seurat considers that the ray is the second host in this case. For he has found in the spiral intestine of this fish small tapeworms, which he regards as the adult form of the larval worm of the pearl oyster. The author has named this new species of tapeworm Tylocephalum margaritiferae.

The view has been held that the pearl is a secretion formed, as it were, in self-defense, for the surrounding and isolation of an injurious foreign body. If M. Seurat's views are correct, however, the pearl would rather appear to be a protection to the worm, and to bear to it somewhat the same relation as the oak-gall does to the gall-fly. When the epicurean ray swallows its oysters the pearls will be dissolved in its digestive juices--as Cleopatra's pearl was dissolved in vinegar--and the worm set free to become a tapeworm in its new host. M. Seurat notes the curious fact that the fish seems to prefer those pearl oysters in which the shell has been riddled by a species of boring sponge. It does not appear to have been ascertained, however, whether or not these oysters with the perforated shells are the most prolific in pearls.

The Legend of Antigonous.

In the old city of Antwerp there is an immense statue, nearly forty feet in height, of the legendary giant, Antigonous. The story about him is that hundreds of years ago he installed himself at a certain point on the river Scheldt and extorted heavy toll from all who passed. If they would not pay he cut off their hands and threw them into the river. When the giant was finally slain the city which had grown up around that spot was called Pentwerpen, which means "hand-tossing." Of course Antwerpen was finally corrupted into Antwerp.

When they have a celebration of any kind in Antwerp, now, they carry the great statue of Antigonous about the streets preceded by two men carrying plaster casts of hands as emblems.

Godfather of the Army.

When the Vermont man, Redfield Proctor, was War Secretary there was an army regulation making it compulsory on the soldiers to attend tattoo rollcall. Tattoo sounded at 9 o'clock and in the summer, when the sunset was late, there was little more than an hour between dress parade and the next formation. The result of this was that the soldier had no time to make a call on his sweetheart or to visit the village near the garrison. Secretary Proctor issued an order doing away with compulsory attendance at tattoo and substituted therefor a rule that the men must be in quarters at 11 o'clock at the latest. The change was a boon to the men and a service to discipline. The oldest men of the United States army regard Redfield Proctor as a sort of godfather to the service. --Chicago Post.

The Zulu War Cry.

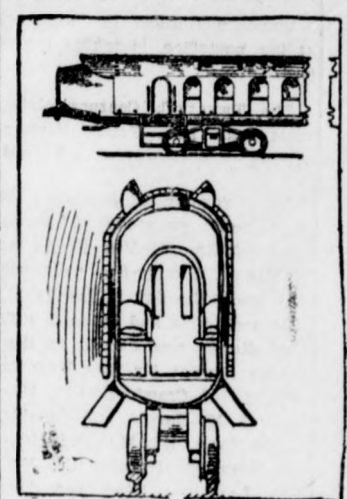

The Zulu war cry, used whenever they take the field by the South African footballers, has puzzled our newspapers, not one of which seems able to spell it correctly.

The Daily Express gives it as "Igamlilho," and the Daily Mail as "Gammillio." The cry really consists of two words, and should be written "Igama layo." "Igama" is Zulu for "name," and "layo" is a possessive pronoun, meaning either "his" or "their." Thus the Daily Mail, although quite wrong in its orthography of the cry, is right in saying that it merely means "That is his name." The explanation is that Zulu etiquette does not allow warriors, when they rush into battle, to mention the names of their enemies, but to lead them out. "That is his name," pointing to the victims with their

NEW TYPE OF RAILROAD CAR.

Constructed to Be Fireproof and Also to Assure Speed.

The tendency in the construction of modern railroad equipment is to design cars which are absolutely fireproof. Statistics prove that more lives are lost in the fires which inevitably follow serious wrecks on the road than are actually caused by the collision. Railroads in every part of the United States are at present experimenting with passenger coaches of fireproof construction, and are building no more of the old wooden type. The majority of these new fireproof cars have been of steel construction throughout, with the exception, of course, of the seats. It has been found that this is the ideal material. The one disadvantage is in the fact that this type of car retains heat to a great extent, and the problem has narrowed down to a successful method of ventilation. One of the most recent devices for overcoming this fault is shown in the car here illustrated. This car is covered with a removable hood, which is supported over the car, a space intervening between the hood and the top and sides of the car. This is claimed to afford means for keeping the car cool. The hood is also made with the top and sides convex and tapering ends, thus assisting in securing speed.

Car Horses Ready for War.

It is said that during a charge in the South African War a number of London bus horses that had been requisitioned for active service came to a sudden and exceedingly awkward stoppage on a hill being rung by the knowing enemy. The story is recalled by a paragraph headed "Registration of horses for War Office purposes" that appears on the London County Council agenda.

It seems that for some time past the Council has had an arrangement of this kind with the Whitehall authorities. The War Office pays 5s. a horse a year, and an agreement is entered into by which in case of war the War Office has power to purchase registered horses at the price of £55 each.

Last year 2,000 horses were registered, and the highways committee now recommends that a similar number be registered next year. The electrification of the London tramways system will ultimately rob the Council of a valuable incidental source of revenue and the War Office of a useful standby in case of emergency. --London Chronicle.

Boardwalk Towns.

The towns of southeastern Alaska, with the exception of Skagway, rival Atlantic City in boardwalks; in fact the highways of the town, sidewalks and streets are built entirely of boards, and these wood covered places have little need of the horse or of large vehicles.

Skagway possesses one family carriage--the only one, so far as I could learn, in that section of the country, says a writer in Leslie's Weekly.

It also has two hotel buses and several express wagons. Juneau boasts of a few teams for the delivery of goods, and Ketchikan is literally "a one horse town," there being but one horse in the entire village of 1,000 persons.

Wrangell, which is one of the oldest settlements of the northland, and was established by the Russian-American Fur Company nearly a hundred years ago, is absolutely horseless, yet it has about 700 inhabitants and is the greatest fur station of Alaska. As for the automobile, unless the residents of this section have visited Vancouver or the States they have never seen this marvellous machine.

Juneau is a lively town with a population of 2,000 and takes its name from Joseph Juneau, a prospector, who through winning the confidence of the Indians discovered gold in Silver Bow Basin. A mile below stands the largest gold quartz mine in the world.

Here with deafening noise and immeasurable force 900 stamps crush the ore into powder and 1,200 men divided into three shifts work day and night, year after year. Only two days, Christmas and the Fourth of July, are observed as holidays, and on these days the mine is closed. It has produced something like $20,000,000 in gold, and is said to have been forced upon the man whose name it bears in 1881 to satisfy a loan of $150.

Benjamin Franklin's Maxims.

A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets keep his nose all his life to the grindstone, and die not worth a groat at last.

The View of Him Who Saw.

The subdued study lamp, though it cast but a faint light, could not belie the fact that it was a man's room, but of a man of a somewhat dual nature.

A great bookcase loomed sheer to the ceiling, and incased therein were the great tomes of the law, government reports and other statistical works; but just alongside was a small case of satinette in which were piled helter-skelter the classic masterpieces of literature and small books of poems, the best of past masters.

As the clock struck midnight the door-bell rang and a butler, hastened to obey the summons. Then the curtain parted. A strong, masterful man entered. His step had the elasticity of youth, but the premature grayness around his temples showed that his life's journey had neared the 40 mark. He was quick to lay aside his outer coat and then his frock coat beneath it. That done, he donned a velvet smoking jacket, from the pocket of which he took a great, black cigar. He lit the Havana mechanically and then ensconced himself in a luxurious lounging chair before the small grate fire.

He puffed for some time in silence. As the hands of the clock pointed to 30 minutes after midnight a look of perplexity came into the face of the man before the fire.

As he sat there the bell rang. He went to the door himself as all the servants had retired.

When he returned a woman walked ahead of him. They both talked in an undertone and with studious courtesy.

"This is the first time I ever sought out a man," she said simply as he ushered her to a chair. "And the first time you ever had to," said he, implying that that was what she wanted to make now, by her emphasis. "That is also true," she said, with a little forced laugh.

"Have you altered your decision?" he asked. "I have not," she returned; "but I have come to see whether you have altered yours."

"I have but to say," he announced between tightened lips, "that no woman of ladylike instincts would venture to parade before the footlights in any way that would reflect upon her in the eyes of her audience. These stage episodes--in fact, all of the suggestive incidents now too frequent--may be deemed professional by you behind the scenes; but the voice of the people is the voice of God." It is public sentiment that is the all ruling power. The question is, "What do those people think of you and those like you when the curtain is dropped and they face the situation in the retrospective, in the cold deliberations of the following day?"

"It's all in our work, our sober, serious, life work. I did not think of it at first; but now I am accustomed to it; my art has become a part of me."

"If that is the case," he rejoined, "why continue this? The hour is getting late."

"As you say," she replied, with a forced effort at gayety.

The man followed her to the door as she went and the last farewell seemed a struggle for him.

Several nights after that early morning interview Gilbert Walshire, the corporation lawyer, had a box party at the theatre. He entertained Miss Littleton of Virginia, who was a belle of that country round.

At the rise of the curtain Walshire went and sat beside her and kept up an animated conversation. At the height of his jollity he swung his arm around Miss Littleton's chair.

The actress playing her part behind the footlights seemed to portray sensations hardly in keeping with her role.

After the theatre party Walshire walked home, deep in thought, but he was brought to a quick stop as he jumped up his own steps.

A woman stood there--a woman who thought herself outraged. Her eyes flashed and she fairly choked with anger. "Who was that woman with you in that box?" she screamed, brandishing a small dagger over her head the while. "Tell me and I'll kill her."

Walshire took the woman by the arm. "Do you agree with my philosophy of life?" he asked with a smile.

"Yes, anything," she panted. "Then I'll take you home," was all he said.

'Bus Mystery.

Shop walkers and bus conductors, it seems to me, disappear immediately they reach middle age. Old bus drivers you may see on every other bus that goes by but a younger conductor is so great an incongruity, that one almost starts to behold him. Where do they go, these men who vanish from their accustomed places with middle age? --Strand Magazine.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO TAX PAYERSMany will question the amount of their taxes and ask concerning their personal property assessments and land appraisement. Mistakes will occur where the assessment of property and the extending and collecting of taxes are done by as many different officers.The Treasurer and Auditor will cheerfully correct all mistakes for which they are responsible and the county assessor will explain the assessment of personal property and where possible adjust it in error.Time is at hand for the paying of Fall taxes. You soon will find yourself in the Treasurer's office in a great crowd, awaiting to get to pay windows. Some will be in a hurry to make certain trains to get home. Why delay and cause yourself as well as the treasurer so much inconvenience?If the second installment of taxes is not paid within the limit set by law, the taxes become due and delinquent and with penalty is extended by the Auditor and charged to the Treasurer. The state is interested in this extension and the Auditor and Treasurer are both personally liable for any penalties that might be refunded.Under no circumstances can the Treasurer alter the duplicate. He can make no reduction in taxes and he can not refund money once paid in. Errors must be corrected through the Auditor's office.As the Treasurer can not know the location of each person's property, tax payers should designate the property on which they wish to pay, and see that all property is included in their receipt. If they have land in more than one township or corporation, or desire to pay taxes on lands or lots not in their name, call the Treasurer's attention to the matter, fully examine receipts, see if they describe all property (personal and real) and are otherwise correct before leaving the office, and if any errors are evident have them corrected at once.The Tax Duplicate is not a transfer book and when, for any year, the Tax Duplicate is made with reference to the property on the first day of March said year, the duplicate remains forever unchanged as to showing of property and in whose books or prompt recording of deeds to the contrary notwithstanding.Property will appear in same name to the payment of the second installment as for first. Assignees, Guardians, Administrators and others who pay taxes on property in trust, and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are earnestly requested to settle such taxes before the last few days, as it requires considerable time to make divisions and separate receipts. Thus avoid mistakes which might happen during the rush of the last few days of taxpaying."All property, both Real and Personal, shall be liable for the payment of all taxes, penalties, interest and cost charged to the owner thereof in such county, and no partial payment of any such taxes, penalties, interest or costs shall discharge or release any part or portion of such property until the whole is paid, which lien shall in no wise be affected or destroyed by any sale or transfer of any such personal property, and shall attach on the first day of April, annually, for the taxes of such year."—From Section 173, Acts '81.Special Notice.
All Ditch Taxes and Street Improvements must be called for separately.The taxpayer often has personal property and poll assessed to him separately from his real estate especially when the land is in joint title, and accordingly must have a receipt therefor.Delinquent taxes must be paid before the current tax.The Treasurer will not be responsible for penalties and charges on delinquent taxes, resulting from omission of the person, paying such tax to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed.Very Respectfully,
ARTHUR L. REAT,
Treasurer Putnam County.
